

#MeToo

From a Curation/Documentation Perspective

Our Questions

- How can AU help us document decision-making as archivists and librarians managing web archives?
- Can AU inform collection analysis/collection development decision making?
- Can AU be use to enhance collection level descriptions?
- Are there ways to automate/accelerate/improve our work?

Our context

- Librarians and archivists
- Concerned with curation,management of our web archives
- Reducing “noise” for our users (or at least contextualizing it)

Affordances of the Notebooks

- Making small adjustments to filter down to core results or analyse fringe elements
- We're excited about the ability of Jupyter to be reproducible
  - we work through the filters, identify elements that can be de-indexed, ways we can improve future crawls
  - save the configuration
  - train others on how apply it on subsequent crawls
  - Provide the notebook as a means of users to access, understand the content
- Word frequency, distribution of terms, across the corpus etc.
  - Useful for improving collection level descriptions

What Yoo Young Did

- Pulled the full text derivative into the notebook dataframe
- Was able to see where articles/pages are being tweeted
- Given more time, we might be able to figure out how to determine which tweets are embedded, which tweets have embedded media in them
